P.C. :

1. The order under challenge being inter-locutory and made during the course of the hearing of the suit, does not prevent the petitioner from taking recourse to the provisions in law for having the documents exhibited on record. Similarly, the order being inter-locutory, at this stage, no inteference is called upon, in as much as, the petitoner can if the final order is adverse in the suit, impugn this part as well and incorporate appropriate pleas in that behalf while challenging the final order. Both courses being open, this is not a fit case for inteference under Article 227 of the Consitution of India. Petition dismissed with no order as to costs.
